2026 Editorial Calendar

DIRECTIONS is published six times annually: February, April, June, August, October, December.

Volume I: Foundations of Excellence

This issue emphasizes developing competence, consistency, and ethical practice among CRT professionals by focusing on building strong clinical and ethical foundations. It highlights the importance of mastering clinical assessment best practices to ensure accurate outcomes from the start, fostering effective partnerships between suppliers and clinicians, and strengthening core competencies to support professional growth.

Volume 2: Innovation in Motion: Technology, Design, the Future of CRT

Innovation in Motion explores how emerging technologies are transforming the future of Complex Rehab Technology by enhancing function, independence, and clinical precision. It examines the influence of smart wheelchairs, connected devices, and artificial intelligence on daily mobility and care. Also included is the integration of IoT and smart home systems for greater accessibility, showcasing innovation that continues to redefine both design and user experience in CRT.

Volume 3: Advocacy & Policy: Protecting Access, Advancing Change

This issue focuses on empowering CRT professionals to influence the systems that shape service delivery by providing insights and tools for effective advocacy and policy engagement. It addresses funding reform, effective communication throughout the funding process, and key lessons learned from the CRT Fly-In and grassroots advocacy initiatives.

Volume 4: Growing the Professions: Education, Mentorship, Pathways

Sustaining and expanding the Complex Rehab Technology workforce requires fostering education, mentorship, and professional growth. This issue highlights the importance of establishing defined educational pathways for CRT Suppliers and CRT Service Technicians, promoting mentorship and intergenerational knowledge transfer, and supporting ongoing continuing education to meet changing industry needs.

Volume 5: Through Their Eyes: User, Family, Caregiver Perspectives

Through Their Eyes centers on the lived experiences of CRT users, families, and caregivers, emphasizing the human stories behind complex rehab technology. This issue shares powerful personal accounts that highlight empowerment through training and technology, the role of mobility in identity and self-expression, and the importance of dignity, inclusion, and social connection. By giving voice to those who rely on CRT every day, this issue reminds professionals why their work holds such profound meaning and impact.

Volume 6: Evidence & Impact: Research, Outcomes, the Future Vision

The crucial role of data-driven insights and research in shaping the future of Complex Rehab Technology is the focus of this issue. It explores how outcome tracking and analytics lead to better clinical decisions and demonstrate the long-term benefits of early mobility interventions. The discussion extends to connecting evidence to innovations alongside the expanding potential of telerehab and remote configuration.
